

Alison Galea nee Pace started playing the guitar at the age of six. She was born straight into music as her father is the guitarist Mro. Tony Pace. Her father taught her guitar up to diploma level. He was a great inspiration for her so much that today, her work is only related to music.

She started teaching the guitar at the age of seventeen, for a few years under the supervision of her father, then on her own. She has been teaching classical, acoustic and electric guitar for twenty-five years. During the last twelve years, her main work has been solely that of a music teacher in the studio she runs herself. Each year, she presents a number of students for examinations of the London College of Music and Trinity College, where the students pass with high marks. On several occasions, her students have had the opportunity to participate in major events like The Voice Kids Malta and Notte Bianca.

As a guitarist, Alison is invited to television programs, and she also performs during lunch time concerts in Valletta. For many years, she used to work as well in the field of entertainment related to weddings.
